

MAUI MARKET REPORT

JUNE 2026

Maui's housing market showed improved activity in June, with single-family home sales rising to 76 transactions while the median price held at $1,356,975, remaining in line with the $1.3 million range seen throughout much of 2025. Condo sales also strengthened to 87 transactions as pricing continued to adjust, offering buyers improved value compared to recent years. Even so, buyers remain deliberate, with median days on market climbing to 149 days—the longest since June 2014. Toward the end of the month, however, new escrows increased significantly while pending sales edged higher, suggesting that well-priced properties are continuing to attract buyers despite a more selective market.

ISLAND-WIDE OVERVIEW

SINGLE-FAMILY HOME TRANSACTIONS

JUNE 2026 VS. PERCENT CHANGE OVER LAST YEAR

Single-family home activity strengthened in June, with 76 sales and pricing holding steady within recent ranges. Activity was led by Upcountry, which recorded 24 sales (+26% YoY), followed by Central Maui with 21 sales (+5% YoY), reflecting continued demand in primary residential markets. While pricing varied by region, the island-wide median remained anchored near recent norms, suggesting that Maui's single-family market continues to show resilience despite shifting buyer pace and broader affordability pressures.

CONDOMINIUM TRANSACTIONS

JUNE 2026 VS. PERCENT CHANGE OVER LAST YEAR

The condo market posted 87 sales in June, supported largely by West Maui and South Maui, which each recorded 39 transactions. While sales activity improved, median pricing remained well below year-ago levels, continuing a trend that has made many listings more attractive to buyers. At the same time, median days on market climbed to 149 days—the longest since June 2014—reflecting a market where buyers are taking more time to make purchasing decisions. Recent market activity suggests pricing remains the deciding factor, with dozens of sellers reducing prices during the month and several listings moving into escrow shortly after price adjustments, reinforcing that well-priced properties continue to generate demand.
